THE MONGOLIAN DYKE
It is a pleasure to read and an eminent Dyke, to see the little tribe around as clad in Scottish kilts, with their hair shorn latitudinally, around the cranium, thereby permitting the sun's rays to play around the scalp, as easily as it now frisks around banana limbs. Further than this, believed, it is a great satisfaction to note our young men who about the Lord adorned with a silken covering, now following in the abandoned practice of the heathen, and whom I soon expect to see bedecked with Mongolian queues. Old things become new, seventh scripture, and because we hooted and tormented our Chinese brethren until they discarded their mark of ancestry, we now must flock to their habit and exchange customs, beautiful and graceful, and because a would be massive brain by withdrawing the fibre, which Prof. Fowler would say, "graciously exposes the bump of philosophy." They tell me, brethren, that this cult is christened the "Mongolian Dyke." I really think it very appropriate. I was tempted to write a poem on this subject and gratuitously mail it to the Republic, expecting to see its publication free. "Nothin' Dooin'." Now I'll pay for it out of sheer obsequy, as my genius is not to be wasted on the Republic.
Oh Mamma! Sadie's cut her hair, And Willie's clipped his too, Their's both the fraziest, fraziest, guys, That I ever saw skiddo—
See one, see all, are you a man? Lake Papa's bob tail mule, And Willie looks the Zola man, Says things in his "bu-bu!"
Think you, dear Mamma, I'll be long, My hair cut, and my hair cut, And gentle boots, and great wide belts.
No more will men adorn? Oh I just hope, I'll see the day, They'll suffer from the same fate, And cast these "petty" far aside, A la french "Bourgeoisie." My garb shall then sweet man, be—
My action make him smile, And quoting bible's see shout, I've got you "beat a mile!" But let the maidens clip their heads, No stylish foot tansorial whim This scalp will "ere" enshroud.
